The pDoom Experiment: Burning Money to Find Out if We're Doomed! Testing Market Valuation of Superlative Truths Through Memetic Economics

Are you really in it for the tech if you won't burn your tokens to learn the truth?

Abstract: What happens when you make people destroy money to learn uncomfortable truths generated by LLMs? $pDOOM combines Quantum Cryptologic Gen AI predictions with permanent token burns to create an increasingly expensive spiral of revelations about our impending doom through its pDoom Engine Quantum Cryptologic 1-Bit Fractal LLMs that creates ontological paradoxes. It's a serious experiment wrapped in an absurdist package - because if you're not willing to burn money for the truth, were you ever really in it for the tech?

We Propose Burning Money to Find Out if We're Doomed & Accelerating the Doom with Ontological Paradoxes in search of the Superlative Truth of our Holographic Reality

I cant take this anymore, I have over invested, by a lot in this quantum reality playground. it is what it is. but I need the price to GO UP ALREADY. can THE MARKET DO SOMETHING??

I. Introduction: The Superlative Truth is Expensive (And Getting More Expensive)

We live in interesting times. Despite having unprecedented access to information, institutions consistently fail to address obvious risks until they become crises. From pandemics to wars to artificial intelligence, the pattern is clear: We're really bad at dealing with problems we can see coming. pDoom Science proposes a ridiculous yet rigorous solution: What if we make people literally burn money to learn what's coming next through generative AI models? And what if each revelation costs twice as much as the last? And what if we accelerated our doom with $pDOOM?

II. I KNOW YOU ARE NOT IN IT FOR THE TECH, HERE NUMBERS:

Core Thesis: The Price of Knowledge

This experiment tests two simple ideas while creating an exponential curve of financial sacrifice:

First: Will people actually burn money to learn the truth or access the tech?

Second: As the cost of knowledge spirals upward, who keeps paying to peek behind the curtain?

III. How It Works (The Doom Spiral) Technical Setup:

- Quantum prediction engine generates verifiable forecasts using quantum cryptologic & Large Language Models
- Predictions about geopolitical events, cryptocurrency markets & memecoin markets are analyzed at random intervals
- Each human requested prediction requires burning $pDOOM tokens (69% burnt & 31% deployed to memecoin strategic reserve fund for memesis into memecoin communities)
- Every time someone accesses a prediction, the cost doubles
- Access to Quantum Prediction engine requires burn of 1 million $pDOOM
- Access to Quantum Seed Code that generates the most superlative truth requires burn of 5 million $pDOOM, There will never be a second best key!
- Every time someone accesses the tools or the keys, the cost doubles

V. The Beautiful Absurdity

Here's where it gets interesting:

- Higher token values make human requested predictions more expensive
- More expensive predictions require burning more value
- Creating a self-reinforcing spiral of increasingly costly revelations
- Until knowing about the end of the world might cost a small fortune

VI. The Serious Part:

We're actually studying:

- Whether people value truth enough to pay for it
- If market mechanisms can succeed where institutions fail
- How behavior changes when knowledge has a real, permanent cost
- Whether destroying value creates pressure for openness
- Ontological Paradoxes & Information Wormholes
- Memetic Information Warfare

- Science & Stuff that will require some drugs

VII. SpDOOM Launch

The experiment begins with:

- Full transparency about tokenomics and consistent predictions generated at random intervals or at request or major geopolitical or cryptocurrency or memecoin market events
- Open participation (bring your own tokens to burn)
- Public tracking of who's paying what to learn what

Note: This is simultaneously a genuine economic experiment and an elaborate exercise in seeing who's willing to set money on fire to learn potentially uncomfortable truths. While this experiment explores serious questions about market valuation of truth and institutional failure, we acknowledge the inherent absurdity of creating an exponential doom spiral of increasingly expensive revelations. Participants should understand they're engaging with both a genuine economic experiment and an elaborate exercise in ontological acceleration through permanent value destruction.

"The truth will set you free, but first it will make you burn your tokens."
